Information about Down Syndrome for New and Expecting Parents

Your baby has or may have Down syndrome. It is natural for you to have questions, concerns or fears. You are not alone in your feelings or on the journey ahead of you. Know that the outlook for people with Down syndrome has improved over time because of advances in medical care, education and public attitudes. This brochure has facts about Down syndrome and a list of places where you can go to find more information and support.

About Down Syndrome

Each cell in the human body has 23 pairs of chromosomes; babies get half of each pair from their mom and the other half from their dad. Down syndrome is a genetic condition that is usually caused by an extra copy of the twenty-first chromosome. It is not caused by anything either parent did or did not do.

About 250,000 people in the United States have Down syndrome. Down syndrome does not usually run in families.

Children with Down syndrome will grow and develop like other babies, but may meet milestones later than a typical child. The mental, behavioral and developmental progress of people with Down syndrome varies widely and cannot be predicted before a person is born. Currently, the average life expectancy for people with Down syndrome is about 60 years.

Your Child with Down Syndrome

You can help your child fulfill his or her potential by having high expectations. Nurture and relate to your child like any other, and create a supportive and caring environment to help your child thrive.

People with Down syndrome are active and valued members of their community. This includes children who are involved in social and school programs, and adults who have jobs and live independently or with some support.

• Children with Down syndrome are more like other children than they are different.

- Babies with Down syndrome usually have developmental delays. Early intervention like occupational and speech therapy helps babies meet their milestones.
- Most babies with Down syndrome have low muscle tone at birth. This usually improves with time, and physical therapy can help.
- Half of babies with Down syndrome will have health issues. This could include heart or gastrointestinal conditions that may require surgery.
   Babies with Down syndrome have higher chances for feeding and digestive issues, hearing loss, vision impairments, and respiratory infections. Most of these conditions can be treated with good health care.
- People with Down syndrome can do all the things a typical person can do, including participate in sports and have a job.
- People with Down syndrome usually have a mild to moderate range of intellectual disability.
- Children with Down syndrome often attend regular schools in regular education classes with differing levels of support. There are now many college programs for people with intellectual delays.
- People with Down syndrome can have regular jobs or ones with support.
- People with Down syndrome can live independently or in a group home, and have friends and intimate relationships.
